

SEWARD JOHNSON SCULPTURE EXHIBIT IN DOWNTOWN PLEASANTON APRIL 1 TO JUNE 30, 2010

Eleven life-sized sculptures by internationally recognized bronze sculptor Seward Johnson come to Downtown Pleasanton on April 1, 2010. These temporary sculptures depicting everyday activities will be installed at various locations to generate interest and increased appreciation for art events of this type.

Timed in conjunction with the grand opening later this year of the Firehouse Arts Center, this is the first expansive public art exhibit hosted by the City's Civic Arts Commission. The commission selected the Seward Johnson sculpture project as a starting point based upon its broad appeal and relative ease with which the event could be coordinated.
